The two left side wheels of the wagon was all gone but their luba. As the team turned up Spring street a young man on horse-back overtook them, and gravping the left horse jerked the bit lill he animals were compelled to stop. They came as far as the postoffice through a street containing a large crowd of teams and foot passengers, and no one was hart, although it took considerable dodging on the part of a none packetrians to get out of their way. The police took charge of the horses, which were unisjured, and placed them in a stable to await the call of the owner.
